“...a Great Multitude, Which No One Could Count.” (What Really Matters, VII)

I, John, had a vision of a great multitude, which no one could count, from every nation... Then one of the Elders said to me, “These are the ones who have ... washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. ... God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.”

Rev. 7:9-17, today's second Reading

In today's passage, John turns away from his diagnosis of current events (namely, the idolatrous nature of the claims the Roman Empire was making on its inhabitants, including the early Christians) toward the result of faithful discipleship: “God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.” Remember that these tears are not limited to the sadness that accompanies the ordinary losses of every life: John writes to encourage people who have lost jobs to discrimination; possessions to confiscation; family members to imprisonment, torture, and exile; perhaps even their own lives for refusing to assent to the claims Rome was making for their fealty. Discipleship, for John, is first of all a yes – to the Risen Christ, Lamb who died and now dies no more; followed by a no – to every other claim to ultimate obedience; and then another yes – to whatever hardship comes as a result of that yes and no.

I'm convinced that one of the reasons our Church is weak is that we've focused on the first “yes” – to faith in Christ – without an equal focus on the “no” – the analysis of our current situation and its fallen state, including the subtle but powerful threats to true discipleship that inhere in our situation. We're comfortable with the language of personal holiness, but not with the language of social analysis and critique. As the Brazilian bishop Dom Helder Camara (1909-1999) used to say, “When I give food to the poor, they call me a saint; when I ask why the poor have no food, they call me a Communist.” To ask “why the poor have no food” is rarely taught in faith formation as a question equally important with “why we go to Mass on Sunday.” Revelation celebrates the people who have learned to ask such questions and to answer them – sometimes at the cost of their lives.<sup>1</sup> “These are the ones who have...washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.”

This is why we need to reread Revelation: to be reminded what clear-sighted discipleship looks like. To be reminded that every generation of disciples is tempted to idolatry by the Powers of its age. For John's churches, it was the pinch of incense offered in the Roman temples (insignificant standing alone, but symbolically a mark of fealty to Rome's claim to be the ultimate ruler of all things). For us often, it's letting our lives be shaped by our culture's visions of success, of “the good life,” of “the way things work,” of the necessity and acceptability of violence sometimes (the death penalty, abortion, wars of choice); of what it's worth investing our time and attention in (“reality” TV? social media gossip? “shopping therapy?”); of the inevitability of the gap between rich and poor (not just in our nation but around the world). We – mercifully – do not face the sort of violent persecution that it is estimated 100 million Christians do today. Instead, we face subversion from within, through blindness to the misleading messages we are surrounded with. It may even be more difficult for us than it was for John's first hearers. Being led to the altar by a Roman soldier and told “Offer the incense or suffer the consequences” had at least the merit of being a clear and unmistakable moment of decision. The choices we face are more subtle and ambiguous. Having never been taught how to see clearly what we must say a “no” to, our discipleship is hobbled.

The voices that teach us a disciples' “no” are often celebrated when they are safely in the past but condemned or ignored by contemporaries: We admire St. Francis of Assisi for giving away his possessions but resist calls to give more ourselves so that the poor of the world can be fed. Few Catholic Americans listened to Saint John Paul II when he called the invasion of Iraq immoral, preferring to believe the messages of “realistic” pundits and politicians. Even to discover those voices, so as to hear and judge what they have to say, can be difficult since they hardly get wide notice in secular media except to be mocked as unrealistic or irrational. We need John's reminder that discipleship rests on a “yes” and on a “no”; and that acceptance of the suffering that this “no” often involves will be met with a “welcome” from the Lamb, who will wipe every tear from our eyes. Until next week, peace.

Faith Formation News

As our Faith Formation year winds down here are some recent things we've been doing! Our Level 4 students have spent this year learning about the Ten Commandments. The year was highlighted by class projects, mostly short movies made by each class to show their learning of the Commandments. Families were invited in to see the productions. They were wonderful!

Our Level 5 students have been studying the Sacraments and are finishing the year making a Resurrection Garden to take home and watch grow. During this class, we also spoke in depth about the Jesus death and resurrection.

Our Confirmation students are finishing their formal formation with a special lesson on the Triduum and Easter. Once again, we've had a busy yet wonderful year!

If you would like to help in any way in our Faith Formation Program, we are in need of Catechists (teachers), hall monitors or people who can help in other ways throughout the year. Call the Faith Formation Office at 631-661-9353.

Registration is open

Registration is open now for the 2019-2020 Faith Formation year! Our early incentive period is from now until August 1, 2019. The schedule will be changing slightly this year, so early registration ensures the choice of class days and times you want. Remember, all tuition from this year must be paid in order for next year's registration to be processed. Also, all classes and work must be completed.

CATHOLIC SOCIAL TEACHING

In his Apostolic Exhortation Gaudete et Exsultate, Pope Francis uses the Beatitudes to reflect on our response to God's call to holiness in today's world:

Hunger and thirst are intense experiences. There are those who desire justice and year for righteousness with similar intensity. Jesus says that they will be satisfied, for sooner or later justice will come. We can cooperate to make that possible, even if we may not always see the fruit of our efforts.

How many people suffer injustice, standing by powerlessly while others divvy up the good things of this life.

Some give up fighting for real justice and opt to follow in the train of the winners. This has nothing to do with the hunger and thirst for justice that Jesus praises.

True justice comes about in people's lives when they themselves are just in their decisions; it is expressed in their pursuit of justice for the poor and the weak. If we give the word too general a meaning, we forget that it is shown especially in justice towards those who are most vulnerable.

May is Older Americans' Month

It seems that the older we become the more we appreciate life, and the more we want to share that awareness. In a letter that he wrote to older people in 1999, Saint John Paul II told them, "The Church still needs you." He went on to call later life a "time for commitment to the service of our brothers and sisters in charity." We thank the many older adults who have accepted the responsibility to undertake some form of service to others. In addition to being a strength for their families, the parish community is indebted to them for their wisdom and experience. The Christian Vocation has no retirement age!!

Hope for Youth – May 11, 2019 Heckscher State Park , East Islip – 9am - 2019 Run For Hope 5K

Run, walk or volunteer for Hope For Youth's annual Run For Hope 5K on Saturday, May 11, at Heckscher State Park in East Islip. This year's Run For Hope will be benefiting Homeless Youth on Long Island. The funds raised will support education, recreation and mental health services as well as outreach activities.

The Hope For Youth Shelter provides a safe, supportive and secure environment for all Suffolk County youth between the ages of 12 and 20 who find themselves in crisis and need a haven. The Runaway and Homeless Shelter is a co-ed, short term, nine-bed facility. The shelter provides a safe and therapeutic environment to assess the safety, medical and treatment needs of the youth. The goal of this program is to plan with the family for reunification when appropriate and/or other more permanent resources that can provide permanent housing to the youth.

Spousal Bereavement Support

Survival is coping every day, day by day, moment by moment. Being alone and being lonely are two different feelings. When you lose a spouse, you are plunged into roles you never expected. Single parent, bread winner, bill payer, shopping, cooking, cleaning; you don't share these any more. You are the only provider for yourself. There is no distinction between men and women. They both have to learn new skills. It becomes opposite of what you're accustomed to. Cooking, cleaning, car inspection, toilet leak have to be taken care of no matter who you are.

A bereavement support group is what helped me. Maybe it can help you. It costs nothing, and you can share with others the same feeling of loss, the loneliness, and the changes you are now faced with.

We will be offering a bereavement support group which is an eight-week program that meets one day a week for 90 minutes each time. My name and phone number and the co-facilitator are listed below. You're not going to know unless you try.

John Laszewski 631-874-0210 and Fran Kish 631-587-1578.
